

7.3 – Institutional Distinctiveness

This institution in its quest for excellence has always proved its distinctiveness in catering to the realms of education and research. Professional Development Programs titled PKT – Patrician Knowledge Transfer – an initiative taken by the institution to foster to the needs of faculty and students in knowledge sharing. 18 days and 35 sessions by the faculty on different domains of learning has created an atmosphere of knowledge distribution.

The transfer of knowledge, skills, and confidence among faculty members is essential for fostering a collaborative and effective academic environment. By creating this structured platform for knowledge sharing, via initiatives such as workshops, seminars, and mentorship programs, in addition to the special initiative of PKT, faculty members can disseminate their expertise to peers, enriching the overall teaching and learning experience. This transfer not only includes academic knowledge but also practical skills, best practices, and innovative teaching methodologies that enhance the overall effectiveness of the institution. The outcomes of PKT knowledge-sharing programs among faculty are multifaceted, positively affecting teaching, research, professional development, and institutional growth. By institutionalizing this process, the institution aims to create an enduring foundation of knowledge that supports the professional growth of faculty and elevates the quality of education provided to students.
